1973 SAVINGS BOND CAMPAIGN LAUNCHED AT LIBRARY ON MAY 1

During May the Library of Congress will join with Federal agencies in the 1973 Savings Bonds Campaign "Take Stock in America '73." The Campaign will be conducted in the Library under the direction of 1973 Campaign Chairman Paul E. Edlund, Chief of the Card Division. Mr. Edlund will be assisted by Department Chairpersons Susan Aramayo (Processing), John Beglin (Copyright), William Dodge (Reference), Asa Hardison (CRS), Barbara Sakamoto (Office of the Librarian), Norman Shaffer (Administrative), and Virgiliu Stoicoiu (Law Library).

Within the next few weeks all staff members will have an opportunity to participate in the program on a voluntary basis. Each person will be contacted by a keyworker in his department, who will explain the importance of the bonds program, and assist in planning savings programs and completing appropriate authorization forms.

The goals of the "Take Stock in America '73" Campaign are to increase the number of Library employees taking advantage of bond purchases as a means of savings, invite all present buyers to increase their savings, and call attention to the interest rate of 5 1/2 percent for Series E Bonds when held to maturity and the tax advantages of Savings Bonds purchases over other forms of systematic savings.

G&M DIVISION DISPLAYS EARLY PANORAMIC MAPS

"Panoramic Maps of U.S. Cities," an exhibit of 60 maps, or "bird's eye" views, of American cities as they appeared in the post-Civil War period, is on display at the Geography and Map Division, 845 S. Pickett St., Alexandria, Va., through June 30. The maps were selected from over 1,100 examples in the Division's collections.

The panoramic map was a popular wall decoration and advertising medium employed after the Civil War and its popularity continued until 1930. The map was a lithographic representation of a city as if it were viewed from above at an oblique angle. Street patterns, buildings, modes of transportation, and human activity were presented in the urban panorama.

The exhibit highlights the works of the two major panoramic map makers, Albert Ruger and Thaddeus M. Fowler. The maps demonstrate the manner in which mining, port, industrial, and small and large towns were illustrated, as well as the commercial uses of the urban panorama.

In conjunction with the exhibit, the Division is making available reprints of the article "Panoramic Maps of American Cities," written by John Hébert, Reference Librarian, for the December 1972 issue of Special Libraries. The article furnishes information on America's panoramic map craze from 1866 to 1930.

They are pictured with Meredith Baxter and David Birney, stars of the CBS television series "Bridget Loves Bernie", honorary co-chairmen of the 1973 Campaign.

ROBERT S. BRAY FETED AT RETIREMENT LUNCHEON

Robert S. Bray, recently-retired Chief of the Division for the Blind and Physically Handicapped, was honored at a retirement luncheon given by the Library of Congress Reference Department at the Twin Bridges Marriott Hotel on April 24. The guest list of 120 included Mr. Bray's colleagues at the Library and guests from other organizations with which his work had brought him in close association.

Paul L. Berry, Director of the Reference Department, was master of ceremonies for the program that followed the luncheon. He introduced staff members and guests at the head table, including Mr. and Mrs. Bray; L. Quincy Mumford, Librarian of Congress; John G. Lorenz, Deputy Librarian; and Mrs. Elizabeth Hamer Kegan, Assistant Librarian. Mr. Mumford, in a brief tribute to Mr. Bray, cited the "unparalleled growth of quality in the national library program for the blind and physically handicapped" under his direction, and termed his 15 years of service in that program as "surely the capstone of your 37-year career in the public service. It is a cause that you truly made your own, to the lasting benefit of the patrons." The Librarian concluded with an expression of appreciation to Mr. Bray for his achievements and best wishes for happiness in his retirement.

Mr. Berry presented Mr. Bray with an album containing a "gold" record symbolizing the estimated 38 million records produced by DBPH since the talking book was introduced in 1934, and several written expressions of appreciation and regard from his colleagues. On behalf of Committee Chairman Harold Russell, Larry Volin of the President's Committee for the Employment of the Handicapped presented Mr. Bray with a Resolution of Commendation passed by the PCEH's Library Committee on January 29. Instrumental in founding the PCEH Library Committee, Mr. Bray had served as its chairman for the past eight years.

Lewis C. Coffin, former LC Law Librarian and a fellow officer in the United States Navy with Mr. Bray, gave an a capella rendition of a short song in English and French that he had composed for the occasion. He was followed by Charles Gallozzi, Acting Chief of DBPH, who presented the guest of honor with a gift from his colleagues.

In his response, Mr. Bray expressed his appreciation for the tribute and the gifts, and talked briefly about some of the activities he plans in his retirement years. In recognition of National Secretaries Week, his response included a tribute to his secretary at DBPH, Mrs. Alice Freeman, who sat at the head table.

After serving for more than three years in the Army Air Corps in World War II, he returned to the faculty of Lamar College late in 1945.

Mr. Baugh joined the staff of the Library in 1946 in the Stack and Reader Division, and in the following year was promoted to Librarian in the Congressional Reading Room of the then Legislative Reference Service. In 1947 he transferred to the Public Reference Section of the General Reference and Bibliography Division. He was promoted there in 1948 and again in 1949 upon returning to the Congressional Reading Room.

He became Senior Reference Librarian in the former History and General Research Section in 1953 and was promoted to Senior Reference Librarian and Supervisor of evening and Saturday services in the Congressional Reading Room in 1962. Asian Studies Group Meets in Chicago

The 25th Annual Meeting of the Association for Asian Studies was held at the Palmer House, Chicago, from March 30 to April 1. In addition to attending various committee and council meetings, several Library of Congress staff members participated in open panels and in a conference on the cataloging of Chinese publications in American libraries.

A panel entitled "Libraries and Publishing in China and Japan: Recent Developments and the Prospects for the Future" was held on Friday morning. In this panel Warren M. Tsuneishi, Chief of the LC Orientalia Division, presented the paper "Prospects of Cooperation between Libraries in the United States and Japan in the 1970's." Chi Wang, Assistant Head, Chinese and Korean Section, delivered the paper "Library and Publishing Activities in China: Personal Observations from a Visit to the People's Republic of China." The panel was chaired by Wei-ying Wan of the University of Michigan Library. Another paper, "Bibliographical Control in the People's Republic of China, 1949-1972," was presented by P. K. Yu, Director of the Center for Chinese Research Materials, Association of Research Libraries. Tsuen-hsuin Tsien of the University of Chicago served as the discussant for the panel. The conference room was filled to capacity, and the panel was very well received by the audience.

Abdul Kohar Rony, Southeast Asia Area Specialist in the Orientalia Division, organized and chaired a panel entitled "The State of Retrospective Materials on Southeast Asia." Papers were read by Shiro Saito, University of Hawaii Library, on "The State of Retrospective Research Materials in the Philippines"; Mrs. Zakiah Nor, Deputy Director of the National Archives of Malaysia, on "Research Materials and Facilities of the National Archives of Malaysia"; University of Michigan historians, Joan Beckham and John Whitmore, on "Vietnamese Retrospective Materials"; and Constance Wilson, also an historian, Northern Illinois University, on "Thai Retrospective Materials." John Larkin, State University of New York, Buffalo, acted as discussant. This panel, was well attended and ended by a lively comparison of experiences.

The panel on libraries and resources was chaired by Jack Wells, South Asia Librarian at the University of Wisconsin. Entitled "The Acquisition and Documentation of South Asian Resources: Recent Developments," this session discussed the following papers: "Current Problems in Bibliographic Control: Projects and Proposals," by N. G. Barrier, historian, University of Missouri; "Ghadar Party Project at Berkeley: Collecting Sources in the United States on an Indian Revolutionary Movement," by Kenneth Logan, South Asian Librarian, University of California at Berkeley; "The Medieval Indian Bibliographic Project: Notes on its Progress," by Jack Wells; and "Microform Resource Program of the Institute for the Advanced Study of World Religions," by Christopher George of the University of Pennsylvania. Joan Lancaster, Librarian and Keeper of the India Office Library and Record Office, acted as discussant.

Louis A. Jacob, Head, Southern Asia Section, Orientalia Division, was the AAS Program Committee member responsible for organizing the panels on libraries and resources for the 1973 meeting.

Another member of the Orientalia Division, Thomas H. Kang, Reference Librarian of the Chinese and Korean Section, presented a paper on "Korean Confucian Behavior toward the Modernization of Korea, 1864-1910," in the panel, "Thought and Behavior in Korean Politics." This panel was held on Thursday afternoon, and was chaired by John Oh, Marquette University. More than 150 persons attended.

In conjunction with the annual meeting of AAS, the Association's Committee on East Asian Libraries (CEAL) met on March 31. At this annual meeting, Mr. Tsuneishi presented a statement on "Japanese Government Documents," and Edwin G. Beal, Assistant Chief of the Orientalia Division, presented a proposal drawn up by Joseph E. P. Wang, Head of the Far Eastern Languages Section, Descriptive Cataloging Division, for a manual of Chinese romanization.

On March 29, the Second Conference on Cooperative Chinese Cataloging was convened by Eugene Wu, Librarian of the Harvard-Yenching Library, Harvard University, in the Joseph Regenstein Library of the University of Chicago. LC staff members attending this Conference were C. Sumner Spalding, Assistant Director for Cataloging, Processing Department; Mr. Tsuneishi, and Mr. Beal. The conference was occupied chiefly with a discussion of the report and recommendations made by Karl Lo, Head of the Far Eastern Library, University of Washington, who from November 12, 1972, to February 11, 1973, visited 21 East Asian libraries in the United States and Canada to investigate their needs in Chinese cataloging and related problems. Mr. Lo's survey was made possible by a grant from the Council on Library Resources.

On April 1, the Advisory Committee for the Association's Bibliography of Asian Studies met to discuss problems related to current work on this bibliography and problems which are being encountered. The meeting was chaired by Mr. Jacob. Also present were Richard C. Howard of Cornell University, former Editor of the Bibliography, Mr. Tsuneishi, and Charles R. Bryant of Yale University.

Canadian Cataloging Standards Report Issued

The National Library of Canada has published Cataloguing Standards: the Report of the Canadian Task Group on Cataloguing Standards, available from Information Canada, 171 Slater St., Ottawa, at $3 Canadian. The task group was set up "to study and identify present deficiencies in the organizing and processing of Canadian material, and the cataloguing problems of Canadian libraries, and to make recommendations for improvements." The report consists of 58 recommendations made by the task group to the National Librarian of Canada, the rationale behind each recommendation, and a suggested program for implementation. The series of recommendations is divided into five categories: standardization of entry and bibliographic description, classification of Canadian history and literature, Canadian lists of subject headings, processing of government documents, and processing of serials.

Of special interest to American librarians are the recommendations that: the Anglo-American Cataloging Rules (North American text) continue to be accepted; Canadian libraries abandon superimposition and LC be urged to abandon it; the National Library explore the possibility of a Canadian Cataloging in Publication program; the National Library supervise, for Canadian use, revisions of the sections of the LC classification schedules dealing with Canadian history and literature; the Library of Congress be asked to consider delegating to a team of Canadian experts the development of the classification for Canadian law; the National Library continue to accept the LC list of subject headings, with Canadian development of headings for Canadian topics not well covered in the LC list; the National Library and the National Science Library jointly establish a machine-readable serials data base; and the National Library develop a cooperative indexing and abstracting program for Canadian serials.

March Illinois Libraries Carries UN Workshop Report

A report on the United Nations Documents Workshop held in Chicago on October 20, 1972, appears in the March issue of Illinois Libraries. Guest editor of the special 117-page issue was Geneva Finn, Chairman of the Workshop and Head of the Documents/Serials Branch of the Illinois State Library in Springfield.

The issue contains papers presented at the workshop, a summary of the speeches and discussions, and other items relating to UN materials. Among the papers are "The Computer-Assisted Indexing Program of the United Nations," by Giuseppe Martini, Chief of the Documentation Division of the Dag Hammarskjold Library; and papers on UN documents in microform and on research in the UN archives by Doris Cruger Dale of the Southern Illinois University Library in Carbondale. Although several papers relate to experience with UN documents in Illinois libraries, they should be of interest to librarians concerned with UN documentation.

The issue also includes reports presented at UNITAR's International Symposium on Documentation of the United Nations and Other Intergovernmental Organizations which was held in Geneva in August 1972. Patricia Coatsworth, Documents Librarian of the University of Chicago, has written an analytical account of the symposium. Two UN staff members, Elisabeth Nebehay and Omneya Foz, have collaborated on the paper, "United Nations Publications Outside Regular Distribution."

Among other items in the issue is a seven-page bibliography entitled "UN: A Selected List of Publications," and "Principles Governing United Nations Depository Libraries," a statement dated December 13, 1972, and bearing the UN document symbol ST/A1/189/Add.11 (a series noted in a previously mentioned paper as not regularly distributed).

The Illinois State Library sponsored two earlier workshops on Federal and State documents, and several brief articles relating to questions raised during these sessions complete this issue.

While the supply lasts, libraries may obtain copies of the March issue free of charge from Geneva Finn, Documents/Serials Branch, Illinois State Library, Springfield, Ill. 62756.
